

STORY OF THE MARKET.

The Local Market Remains Steady With But Few Changes Noted.

BAILED AND LOOSE HAY GOES UP

On Account of the Cold Weather and Difficulty of Farmers to Reach Town With Their Products—The Passing of Game—Green Apples Advancing—Other Features of the Wheeling Market Quotations.

The changes in this week's market quotations are comparatively featureless. The supply and demand in most lines has ranged about equal, though the cold weather and difficulty experienced by farmers in getting to town has had the effect of advancing the price of hay one dollar on the ton. The live stock market is quite active, especially calves, which are in unusually good demand. During the holidays this line was almost entirely neglected, but since then the turkey and duck have been relegated to obscurity. There was no change in the local quotations on wool, the market remaining dull.

Venison, quail and pheasants are now out of the market, the limit for hunting deer and the birds having expired. While venison was in season this year the supply was very good and the prices lower than ever before known here. The cause of this was the new state game law that forbids the exportation of venison.

The green apple trade continues rather tame; there is not near the activity there was a few weeks ago, which may be attributed in large part to the enhanced cost. A good many retailers would not handle them at all if it was not to accommodate their customers, as they claim that there is no money in them. Oranges are less active, but for choice stock prices are steady. Booth & Digby, the local wholesale commission men, have a car load of Florida oranges on the road, which are expected this week. They were tracing for them yesterday.

"JANE" LAST NIGHT.

An Elegant Performance Given at the Opera House.

At the Opera House last night Gustav Frohman's company presented the very funny comedy, "Jane." As a curtain raiser the one act drama, "The Lost Sheep," was presented. The scene is located at the home of Jabe Newton, a farmer, who has two daughters. The eldest is away from home on supposed visit to relatives in New York, but really has eloped with George Monroe, a clerk in the country store, whose visits at the house have not been allowed by Mrs. Jabe, a strict but narrow-minded religious woman, who is all head, but whose heart finally triumphs. Farmer Jabe, an easy-going, loving old man of the "Josh Whitcomb type," is all heart for his family, and when it comes to "What will the neighbors say?" and his wife's refusal to allow his fallen daughter to remain at home, shows his love and firmness by saying: "Carrie, stay right here." The return of George Monroe, the clerk, who had met with an accident on his arrival in New York, and had been picked up by an ambulance and lay in the hospital for weeks with the brain fever, while poor Carrie was looking for him until her small stock of money had run out and necessity forced her to return home, is received by the father and then he shows he is honest in his love for Carrie. Jabe says: "We'll have a marriage right here to-night." The younger sister Jessie has some very clever comedy love scenes with a young New York jockey, Tony Keene, who uses the vocabulary of the race track in expressing his love for this smart country girl, who accepts him, and Farmer Jabe says, "We'll have a double wedding to-night. Send for the Baptist minister."

The cast is excellent in every part. "Jane" is as funny as ever, and quite as well played. There was a large audience present and it was evident that all appreciated and enjoyed the play. It will be repeated at the matinee to-day and the engagement will close this evening.

A BLAST AT SOCIETY.

A New Castle Pastor Fulminates Against the Swell Set.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Jan. 15.—Rev. H. G. Dodds, pastor of the Epworth M. E. church, who is holding a revival here, has exploded a bomb in society circles by his attack on some of the swell clubs of the city.

"When parents permit their daughters to attend club dances," says Rev. Dodds, "they are paving the way to unhappy marriages and the divorce court. Some parents not only permit their children to attend dances, but often furnish them with money to burn. In this respect the old fools are often worse than the young fools. No young man or woman can make a living by learning to dance unless they develop into dancing masters, and I would rather risk the chances of Judas Iscariot at the gate of Heaven than those of a dancing master. If you are going to hell it would be a good thing to learn to dance, but you might not think it such an accomplishment after you have danced over the hot coals for 1,000 years. It is better for parents to encourage their children to belong to the Epworth League than to the Junia Club or any other club in town."

This is the second time the Junia Club, composed of prominent society people, has been named from the pulpit recently, the other time being by Rev. J. S. Main, of the Reformed Presbyterian church, and the members are becoming both alarmed and indignant.

Six Mines Resume.

GLOUCESTER, O., Jan. 15.—Work was resumed in six mines in the Sunday Creek Valley this morning and the miners who have been threatened with starvation are much encouraged. A car load of provisions arrived from Cincinnati to-day and a commissary was immediately opened to distribute the food to the suffering people. Word has been received from Cleveland and other cities that liberal quantities of provisions have been shipped here to relieve the distress.

Smitten by Cold or Damp, The kidneys become weak and cease to act properly. Believe their distress and set them in vigorous motion with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and all will be well. Otherwise, apprehend Bright's disease, diabetes or albuminuria, all dangerous maladies. Malaria, dyspepsia, constipation, indigestion and nervousness all yield to this benignant and accessible medicinal agent, which promotes appetite and a gain in vigor and flesh.

THOSE JAPANESE SPIES.

Secretary Gresham Says They Were Executed, But Not Tortured.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 15.—The President to-day sent to the senate the correspondence in the case of the two Japanese spies together with a letter from the secretary of state in which it was stated that the American consuls had no authority to protect Japanese in China except so far as using their good offices when occasion demanded. It was clearly stated to Minister Denby that during the progress of war Chinese subjects in Japan must be direct in the jurisdiction of Japanese courts and military authorities and that treaty provisions to the contrary were necessarily abrogated by the war situation. This, of course, carried with it the status of Japanese subjects in China. The letter further states that there is scarcely any doubt the supposed students were spies.

United States Consul Jernigan, at Shanghai, in a report dated November 2, says: "The two alleged spies were not executed as soon as handed over, but their cases were under investigation for nearly six weeks and I am assured that there was no unfairness practiced against them during the investigation. In a still later report he states that 'a letter from an intelligent foreign resident at Nanking, where the two Japanese were executed, discredits the reports of their torture. Other letters from the same gentleman have proved so accurate that I am disposed to accept the reported torture as without substantial proof.' Secretary Gresham adds: 'The Chinese government denies that the men were put to death after being tortured, and the department is not advised that they were tortured.'"

Mr. Jernigan, in explaining his conduct in receiving the students, said: "Some of the papers found in the possession of the Japanese would naturally create a suspicion of a character tending to support the alleged charge, but they state that they had been students in Shanghai for several years, wearing Chinese clothes, giving the name of the school, the teacher, the place of their lodging and other facts that give to their statement a minuteness which more than raises a reasonable doubt in their favor."

He says the students are mere small boys. He also says in a later dispatch that their papers were such as intelligent students might prepare for personal information, and in this dispatch makes his suggestion that American consuls act as arbitrators. On September 3, Mr. Jernigan notified Mr. Denby of the delivery of the spies and adds: "You seem not to understand my position here."

In a letter to Mr. Denby dated September 1, Mr. Jernigan says: "The result of the examination was a complete vindication of the students from all suspicion and some of their papers were nothing more than notes taken on geographical subjects. I do not think the two boys are spies. Even if a reasonable suspicion attached, it would be cruel to behold mere boys for indiscretions which may have been committed in furtherance of their educational plans. I am interested in them because I feel that to deliver them to a native court would be to deliver them to death and this would lead to retaliation. The barbarous proclamation of the governor of Formosa shocks civilization throughout the world, and yet it remains for China to disavow the prize money receipt for heads and ships issued here by subordinate officers of her arsenal. When the barbarities and cruelties of the dark ages are sought to be utilized in modern warfare it becomes the humane and patriotic duty of all claims and races effectually to protest."

GREAT EXCITEMENT

Prevails at the Diglake Colliery, Where the Miners are Entombed.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Throughout the night relays of men have worked desperately at the Diglake Colliery, Audley, North Staffordshire, where a large number of miners were entombed, at about noon yesterday, by a sudden rush of water from the old workings, as already cabled to The Associated Press. By 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon 150 of the men and boys employed in the mine had been rescued. Of those who had remained below it was thought that twenty were in the lower workings when the mine was flooded, and they were drowned. From the time the disaster was signalled, the rescuers have been doing their utmost to save those who may remain alive, and to recover the bodies of the drowned. The work of rescue, however, has not made much progress, and it is now believed that there are still between ninety and one hundred and twenty men and boys in the mine.

The sorrow stricken wives, daughters and other relatives of the imprisoned miners have been gathered around the pit head ever since the news of the disaster reached them. There they have been patiently facing the bitterly cold wind since shortly after noon yesterday, and many of them have been without food since that time. All of them brought dry clothes for the men and they stand in groups hoping and praying for the safety of those dear to them. The water so constantly fluctuates that the rescuers are well discouraged. They found the bottom of the shaft choked with piles of timber swept there by the torrents of water which poured into the mine.

All of this timber must be removed before the entombed men can be reached. But the ceaseless pumping does not seem to materially affect the continuous flood of water. The greatest fear is expressed that the water will so undermine the galleries that there will be a cave-in. The rescuers work with difficulty, standing in four feet of water, and only fifteen yards progress was made during the night.

Hundreds of miners have arrived at the Diglake colliery from other collieries, and they all volunteer to go down and assist in the work of rescue. Fresh gangs of men are thus supplied to go down every hour.

THE EMPEROR'S SPEECH.

He Called Attention to the Deficit in the Budget.

BREITEN, Jan. 15.—The Prussian Diet was opened at noon to-day in the White Hall of the palace by Emperor William. His majesty read the speech from the throne. He began by saying that the Prussian budget showed a deficit which he hoped would disappear on the accomplishment of the proposed financial reforms by the reichstag. After announcing bills for the extension of state railways and other domestic measures, the emperor drew attention to the fact that the heavy gales and floods of the last few weeks had caused great devastation on the Prussian islands off the coast and in the North sea, adding that the necessary steps would be taken for the adoption of measures to repair the damage.

Regarding husbandry, his majesty regretted that its condition continued to be unfavorable, saying: "To counteract it will be the object of my unremitting paternal solicitude and the most pressing duty of my government." In conclusion, the emperor appealed to all patriotic men for concord and unanimous co-operation against the growing attacks upon the institutions of the state.

SHARP FIGHTING

Reported Between Italian Troops and Abyssinians.

MASSOWAH, Egypt, Jan. 15.—The Italian troops, under General Baratieri, have had some sharp fighting with a large force of Abyssinians, under Ras Mangascia. The latter was attacked unexpectedly by the Italians near Coat, on Sunday last. The enemy numbered 1,000, armed with rifles, and in addition the Abyssinians had numbers of spearmen. The Italians compelled the enemy to retreat to the Gonda mountains.

Later in the day the enemy returned to the attack and advanced upon the front of the Italian expedition, when the Abyssinians were repulsed with serious loss. The enemy attempted to make a flank attack but was again repulsed.

The captives fell into the hands of the Italians. It is said that the Abyssinians lost very heavily.

THE BOAZ DISASTER.

The Big Towboat Loses Twenty-three Barges—Loss $75,000.

An Associated Press dispatch from Louisville, Ky., dated January 14, says: About 6 o'clock this morning the big towboat Boaz, with a large tow of coal and lumber, struck the shore a mile above Hawesville, Ky., and lost twenty-three of her barges. Darkness and a swift current made her helpless, and as fast as the loosened barges turned aside they would be cut down by the ice and go to the bottom like rocks. The steamer sounded her distress whistles, but none of the small boats about there could venture to her assistance. What few barges were not lost became scattered all over the river and the steamer started in pursuit. The river bank is full and the ice is so thick that a skiff cannot cross, and the prospects of saving any of her barges are not very encouraging. The loss will be very heavy.

The Boaz left this city last Thursday en route for New Orleans. She is one of the largest and finest towboats on the river.

Reports from Cannellton, Ind., to night say that the estimated loss of the Boaz boats which sank to-day is $75,000. Crew all safe.

The revival in river traffic since the late extended suspension on account of ice is noticeable. The wharf is crowded with wagons at all hours delivering and receiving freight.

The ferryboat Charleston did not resume yesterday on account of the ice in the river. She remained at the lower end of the island. The city float has not yet been brought up to the old landing place above the wharfloat.

Yesterday one of the Shriver sand barges, loaded, was sunk by the ice cutting a hole in the hull. The loss is about $250. The barge will be raised and repaired. Exaggerated reports of the mishap were in circulation, not justifiable.

The Hudson arrived from Cincinnati at 5:30 p. m. and got away for Pittsburgh at 6:30. She took on 800 bushels of coal at the Belmont coal works, and left several hundred tons of freight here. Capt. Bob Agnew, the youngest master on the Ohio, was on the top deck.

Rheumatism Perfectly Cured. "C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: 'Gentlemen:—I do not know how to express the gratitude that I feel towards Hood's Sarsaparilla, which has cured me at very small cost. I Have Not Slept on my left side for four years; suffering with rheumatism with constant severe pains and being completely run down, but now all is changed and I enjoy good health. ## MOTHERS OF GIRLS.

Too Rapid Growth or Too Absorbing Study.

Causes That Waxy, Bloodless Look of Failing Health.

Try Paine's Celery Compound For a Few Weeks.

The Daughter's Health Will Soon Return.

Languor Will Disappear, and Nervousness Go.

Mothers with daughters that are yet young often ask themselves:

"How can my girls be saved from nervousness and lifelong weakness?"

It falls to the mother, with her clear, thoughtful eyes, to see that the health and future happiness of her daughters is not sacrificed to excessive study or to any unreasonable excitement. The signs of failing health and weakness: pale cheeks, languid behavior, colorless lips, growing thinness, irritability—all these ring alarm in her mind, for they point, each with its separate finger, to but one cause: thin, watery blood, and an already impaired nervous system.

Parents should begin at the first symptom of such tendency to change this unfortunate habit of the body. The real nerve food, Paine's celery compound, if used with the attention to regularity that any able physician's prescription requires—(this remarkably effective blood maker and nerve food is the formula of no less eminent a scientist than Professor Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., of the Dartmouth Medical School), if taken as Professor Phelps urgently advises, is sure to cause forthwith a clearly observed change in the tired, badly nourished body.

A single week will show that the "rundown" system is appropriating more of the food that is taken into the body, and rapidly building up the weakened parts. Languor will disappear; the spirits will be raised; the nervous affections: dyspepsia, neuralgia, and depression that went with the former exhausted condition, will no longer afflict the nerves.

For overworked, worried parents, for thin, pale children, for the aged, who are most apt to be afflicted with rheumatism and sleeplessness, and for any who lack strength there is nothing that progressive physicians rely on so invariably as Paine's celery compound. It makes new blood. It stores the nervous tissues all over the body with fresh material. It builds up the brain. It cleanses every bit of harmful humor from the blood and sends it briskly through the arteries laden with food for the deepest, most vital tissues.

There's returning health and an active, full-fed state of the body in Paine's celery compound.
